FAIRFAX, VIRGINIA

FOREWORD

We are all the products of our environment; during our brief years at Fairfax, it has become a mold to shape our lives. Every facet of school life has left an indelible mark: athletics, Student Government, our teachers, and, most important, the Honor Code. The human values acquired within these walls have helped us to establish the pattern for a lifetime of living among others.

We, the staff of the Sampler, have chosen as our theme "Rebel Reflections". We invite you to leaf through these pages and glance back over the year of 1959-1960, reflecting upon its significance and perhaps viewing its events in new perspective.

This being our twenty-fifth anniversary issue, we hope that you will realize the importance of past achievements. But all reflections must not be of the successes of yesterday; to the future belong new horizons and greater challenges. With faith in ourselves and in our school we must look toward a tomorrow of yet greater achievements.

CONTENTS

Each word spoken, each motion made this year at Fairfax comprises a part of that vast lake of Rebel reflections. We hope that those pictured here will give you opportunity to remember and to consider everything you did—your part in the panorama of Fairfax High School, 1959-1960. Reflections were at their clearest with . . .

to
MISS NELLE A. MARSHALL

Nelle Marshall

In making this dedication, we reflect on these things

The stroke of your brush . . . creating
The light of your torch . . . far-reaching
The time of your service . . . unending
The wisdom of your guidance . . . encouraging
The closeness of your friendship . . . inspiring
The principles of your character . . . strengthening
The spirit of your personality . . . radiating
And the warmth of your heart . . . glowing!

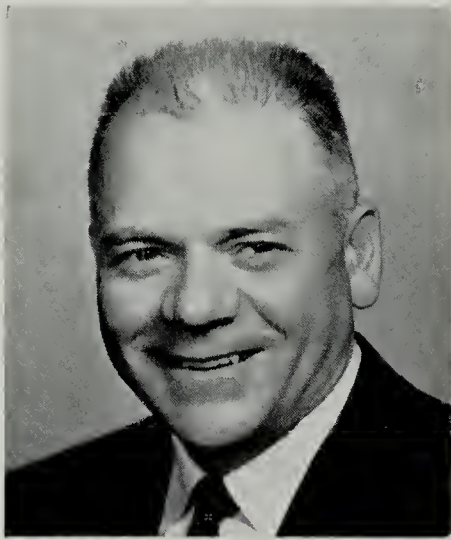

Yes, we will always remember you, Miss Marshall, as we reflect on these things.

Our FACULTY . . .

Knowledge reflected through guidance and friendship

Behind the complexity of our crowded halls, semester exams, plays, dances, victories, and defeats exists a driving force. Sharing our problems and joining our fun, the faculty led us through the trials, tribulations, excitements, and joys of another year. While our minds were occupied with the duties and diversions of each busy day, the knowing eyes of our instructors looked for us to the future. Wisely and tolerantly each prepared us as best he knew how for the years to come. But their interest in us and our projects extended beyond the classroom walls. Sponsoring our activities, the faculty made possible our clubs, class functions, and dances. Their spirit and enthusiasm heightened our own, and together we cheered our teams to victory. Sponsor, coach, advisor, and friends are among the most vivid of our reflections of this year gone by. Through their efforts the gears of our force mesh and move, and the work of a great school is coordinated. Theirs is the responsibility for today; theirs are the plans which will shape tomorrow.

Guidance

The Guidance Department is one of the busiest and most valuable assets of the school. A counselor from this department is available to students of each grade, and through them tests are administered to each class at the beginning of the year. Later, guidance personnel supervise College Board examinations, Merit Scholarship tests, and numerous other tests.

Another service of the Department is to help students in their choice of colleges and advise others in a choice of careers. The school points with pride to the ever-increasing number of college-bound students, and to the success of students in college and those placed in jobs after high school.

To guide us today for tomorrow

FACULTY

Art

Much of the attractive work in the school is a product of our Art Department. Students in Art I, II, III, and IV study in various fields of art for pleasure and to develop skills. In addition, they willingly make posters to advertise school activities and help with the bulletin boards.

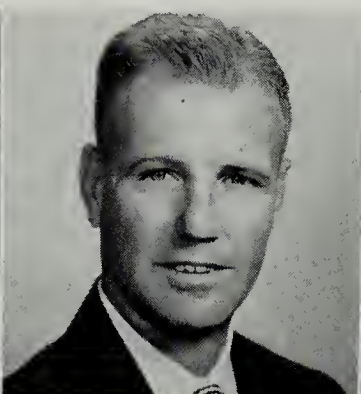

Many facilities are available through this department. Prospective sculptors have a potter's wheel and kiln for their use. Students may also take handicrafts, a new course this year.

Students compete in poster contests and enter various art exhibits in the community. They also sponsor exhibits within the school. Many of the classes take field-trips in the Washington area.

Home Economics

All who pass the rooms in the front west wing of the building can attest to the success of the Home Economics Department. The fragrant aromas that come from the Home Ec kitchens are the results of work that is so important to the future homemakers of our community. Cooking is fun for all.

The girls active in Home Ec also make their own contributions to their wardrobes during sewing classes. Home Ec is a practical course and one of the most popular in the school. Girls are also taught etiquette and the management of the home.

Languages

An expanded language program is the goal of Fairfax High School. A total of five hundred students took courses in Latin, Spanish, and French this year. As a result of many demands, advanced work in modern languages as well as in Latin have been added to the curriculum. For the first time this year eighth graders were permitted to take a foreign language.

Helpful innovations are the new tape recorders and earphones, valuable aids to both teachers and students in oral work.

Latin, French, Russian, and German Clubs acquainted members with the cultures of other lands.

FACULTY

Music

We are justly proud of our exceptional Music Department. This year we have a new, greatly-needed band area, complete with an assembly room as well as practice rooms for those who practice after school hours. Our prize-winning band has won many outstanding awards throughout the state.

At the vocal end of this department are the Senior Choir, Madrigals, Girls' Chorus, Boys' Chorus, and the Eighth Grade Chorus. These vocal groups bring to us many hours of enjoyment during assemblies and through the many concerts they present throughout the year.

FACULTY

Physical Education

In Physical Education the students are taught to develop and maintain good health practices. Boys and girls are exposed to and participate in various sports. Fair play and sound disciplinary practices are stressed.

Lack of space is a great problem. This year two new rooms were equipped with chinning bars, horizontal and parallel bars, and a chest pulley. Long-awaited padding beneath the baskets made the basketball court safer. A refreshment stand, a public telephone, and rest rooms were added for use at games.

The girls also profited by expansion. Their new athletic field finally made out-door gym classes, hockey practice, and home games possible.

Commercial

The Commercial Department prepares its students to enter all phases of work in the business world. Students may take two years of typing, Shorthand I, and II, bookkeeping, Business Mathematics, and Vocational Office Training. All students are eligible to take typing, a very popular and useful course.

Through the Commercial Department and courses in Vocational Office Training many students are placed in offices throughout the metropolitan area.

Science

More courses than ever before were available to science students this year. Effects of the accelerated science program initiated two years ago were noticeable as many juniors took physics, sophomores took chemistry, and freshmen took biology. For the first time Chemistry II was available to upper-classmen.

Extra-curricular clubs sponsored by the Science Department provided additional activities. A major project of these organizations was the annual Science Fair. The Fair, an impressive display of the best student projects, represented another year of achievement in science.

FACULTY

Mathematics

Those students interested in mathematics can take this year Advanced Algebra as well as Algebra I and II, trigonometry, Plane Geometry, Solid Geometry, calculus and analysis courses. General mathematics is also offered to underclassmen. Students who have a major interest in math will have the opportunity to take more advanced courses in their first year of college. Students may also further their knowledge through the Math Club and by doing math projects during the year.

English

Many different types of courses are offered by our English Department. Besides the usual English courses for each grade, English instructors teach drama, creative writing, public speaking, and journalism. Students are taught to communicate effectively and to develop an interest in reading.

Forensics, which are supervised by the English Department, produced winners from each class in public speaking, prose, and poetry reading.

To communicate effectively

To appreciate our democracy

Social Studies

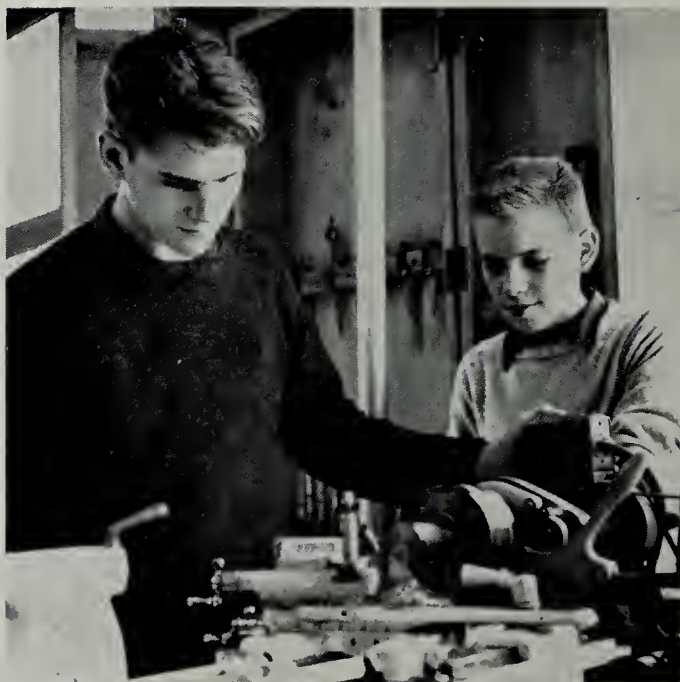

Through the efforts of our Social Studies Department, students increase their knowledge of current world affairs and our government. With field trips, films, and slides brought in by students and teachers, social studies are related to daily occurrences.

Our excellent group of social studies teachers increase their knowledge with supplementary courses and enrich our curriculum with their knowledge of current events.

Industrial Arts

The new industrial arts wing helped to extend the activities of the Industrial Arts Department so that many students will be prepared for trades which they will enter after graduation. The courses offered by the Department give worth-while practical skills to all students. New machinery has made many advanced and interesting projects possible. The new drawing equipment used in mechanical drawing has widened the scope of achievement for the participants in this class.

To master worth-while skills

To gain work experience

D.E. - D.O. - V.O.T.

Fairfax High School offers three courses to students: Distributive Education, Diversified Occupations, and Vocational Office Training. If a student takes one of these courses, he may be placed with firms in the area. This enables him to gain work experience before graduation.

D.E., D.O., and V.O.T. also gives students a basis for making an eventual decision relative to the type of work they wish to do.

Driver Training

The driver-training program of Fairfax High School begins in the ninth grade. All Freshmen receive instruction in driver training.

Sophomore students are offered behind-the-wheel training in a dual-control automobile. In this way they gain practical on-the-road experience both in the driving and mechanics of a car. New equipment on driving safety has proved very helpful in the teaching of classroom "driver ed."

To drive safely

To develop effective reading

Library

The library has gained new facilities in its twenty-fifth year. In addition to many new books, bound copies of various magazines were made available to students this year.

Through the able leadership of our librarians, the library has grown with Fairfax High. The encyclopedias and reference shelves provide excellent facilities to all students. An ever-increasing number of books and magazines are available to meet the needs of everyone. Our library is an essential part of all school activities.

CLASSES . . .

A mirror for our thoughts

The dictionary has defined the word school as "a place or establishment where instruction is given," but to us here at Fairfax that definition is inadequate. For we have become a part of our school, joined to it by an intangible bond of loyalty and pride. It has become a part of us; our every action is a reflection of the ideals and values we have acquired here. Our goal has been to learn and to use our knowledge to understand and better ourselves and the world in which we live. New ideas and concepts have paved the way for mature thought and comprehension. But learning has not been limited to formal classroom situations. Student government and class activities have helped to drive home the lessons in democracy learned in civics and government classes. On the athletic field and in gym classes, teamwork and good sportsmanship have become realities. As we have grown and come a step closer to taking our places in the adult world, we may have reflected upon these simple yet meaningful words so basic to our educational philosophy: "You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

SENIORS . . .

Abound in talent and energy
as they organize and plan for the future

This was our last year to uphold the outstanding reputation that we had earned in the past. Some images of our friends and the things our enthusiastic class has done will fade, but others will remain vivid in our memories. We shall recall how eighth grade confusion yielded to ninth grade confidence. The main feature of the tenth grade for nearly all of us was the last-minute collecting of bugs, leaves, and flowers. Our school spirit really began to show itself in our junior year as we worked on "Charm School" and the Prom. Our senior year began with a frenzied rush of planning. Feverishly we made preparations for Orientation Day, Spirit Week, and the Homecoming Weekend. As the year sped by we were involved in a never-ending whirl of activities: tests, sports, Senior Day, our play, Class Night, the Prom, and finally graduation. Because of our accomplishments we now leave Fairfax with a feeling of pride as we look toward the future.

Claudia: The best of everything to a real sweet gal. Have fun this summer. I hope our friendship may continue for many years and it should since we are neighbors.

JUNIORS . . .

Exhibited a never-ending enthusiasm

A new feeling of importance, but one which entailed heavier responsibilities, greeted us as we entered Fairfax this year. Spirit week bolstered our already surging Rebel spirit, and we did our part by sponsoring the cavalcade to W-L. We were soon reminded, however, that school consists of more than games and cavalcades, thanks to fellows such as Columbus, Euclid, and others. We found free time almost extinct as athletics, clubs, and homework teamed up to "keep us out of trouble." Through our enlarged responsibilities we acquired a sense of confidence and power, a just reward for our tasks well done. Long rehearsals kept us burning the midnight oil for the play. Rings, exams, and a fabulous prom made the last days, as usual, the most hectic. It had gone so fast, and now we realized with a touch of sadness that we had only one more year in which to share our Rebel reflections.

To Claudia:
 One of the most wonderful girls I have ever met. It is so nice to know such nice people as you. She very best of everything in everything you do. Diane Nicks

Our friendship
 this year has been one I will always cherish. May I wish you the best of luck
 in whatever you
 undertake to do.
 I stay as sweet as you are.

SOPHOMORES . . .

Are spirited as they dream of Junior traditions

With this, our second year of high school, came many new experiences. Some of our classmates had obtained positions in the running of our school. We became members of clubs which gave us prestige. We could play on varsity teams. Our advancement in grade also brought increased homework and studying, more outside activities and less time to do them . . . How did we ever do it all?

We realized that this was the year to prove ourselves and our class to the school. At the beginning of the year we had seen the months ahead through an open window; it was up to us. Now the window became a mirror; the reflections of what we had accomplished in the past year were flashing back, reminding us of our success as individuals and as a class.

Learn quickly to become a vital part of the school

With our Freshman year behind us we pause to reflect upon the things we can never forget: our boundless excitement at football games, the Sadie Hawkins dance where we threw formality to the winds, and the Sno-Ball where we donned it again with equal enthusiasm. We toiled for hours over geography maps and acquired new skills in homemaking. We recall, too, the moment when simultaneous equations suddenly began to make sense, the suspense of jay-vee tryouts, the long dash from locker to English class, the sudden peace after final exams, and, most of all, the satisfaction from a job well done. Just two short years ago we entered Fairfax High School greatly bewildered; now, with our shuttling to Jermantown only a fading memory, we feel truly a part of our school and all that it signifies.

PLEBES . . .

Acquire a large measure of spirit that grows and grows

As we entered Fairfax High School, we stepped into a bewildering yet wonderful world of gym classes, crowded halls, five-minute breaks, and pep rallies. We found ourselves the proud possessors of schedule cards, football helmets, locker combinations, and absentee passes. The new freedoms to which we became accustomed developed in us a sense of responsibility and self-discipline. The admiration of that seventh grader down the block more than compensated for the contempt of those aloof and superior Freshmen. The same feeling of school spirit that made us cheer our loudest at football games gave us the enthusiasm to do our part in the magazine drive. Our eighth grade teams and the officers we elected made us proud to be members of the class of '64. As we shared in its wide range of activities, we became more and more impressed with Student Government. The Honor Code became a part of our lives; with each new experience it seemed to take on fresh meanings. It is difficult for us to look back now, for our eyes are focused on tomorrow. But four years from now, as seniors, we will reflect upon these achievements. Time will allow us to see them in proper perspective as they fit into the pattern of our lives here at Fairfax High School.

ACTIVITIES . . .

Echoing halls reflected our rebel enthusiasm

Although we were fewer in number this year, our spirit was reflected in all our activities. We led another life during after-school hours as we met in our clubs to discuss and carry out our projects. At football games, our hopes abandoned with every beat of the drum and every note of "Johnny Reb." Our choir blended their voices to reward us with entertainment and pride at our assemblies. The science clubs found us probing into all kinds of research. In Student Government we held our traditional Christmas drive to help underprivileged children. We successfully showed our talent for debating. The Honor Society was our scholastic goal as Quill and Scroll was our literary goal. Our Rebel reflections revealed to us the way our activities linked us together into one school and one spirit.

*Claudia!
Thank you for a great year!
Don't forget the spirit of '60!*

Student Government... leads our

The Student Government officers Nan Hageman, Treasurer, Ray Vickery, President, Linda Lee, Secretary, and Carol Krauser, Vice-President, discuss plans for the magazine drive.

Our organization was the spark plug for our school. We showed Rebels our unending interest in them and their activities. The students co-operated fully in the Christmas Welfare Drive, and brought in toys and clothes for needy families.

During school hours, we spent one or two periods in the S.G. office preparing for the many activities that lay ahead. Point cards and "Who, What, When, Where" were typed up, edited, and delivered to every homeroom.

When the magazine Drive came up, we were sure of the enthusiasm and spirit that the students would show in pushing a successful drive, and go over our estimated goal for sales. International Week was another major activity that kept us busy every minute.

At the close of the year, after a rash of hurried meetings, preparations in the closing weeks, and excited plans, we found time to pause and recall the wonderful work we had done in promoting a spark of spirit.

Ray Vickery, our President, waits to call a General Session meeting to order.

every passing phase of our interests

We began this year, our twenty-fifth, with the knowledge that the '60 SAMPLER must be the finest Fairfax has even seen. During those first few weeks of writing initial copy and selecting a theme, we learned to co-ordinate our efforts and to work as a team. The arrival of underclass pictures and the rapid passage of valuable time heightened the tension as our Copy Editor typed at a furious rate and the Picture Editors tried to set up six pictures simultaneously with two photographers and one camera. Despite the hours it took, we managed to enjoy our work whether it was soliciting ads or selling yearbook subscriptions in the cafeteria. Our enthusiasm and willingness to work increased as the book took form before our eyes. Receiving our SAMPLERS in June, we experienced a final glow of satisfaction coupled with the realization that the end results had well justified our efforts.

and thoughts in our 25th anniversary

Paul Haas, Dick Hagan, Jim Culhane, and Roger Marshall find that it's sometimes pretty hard to remember to take notes at a football game.

Marianne Sammet has the honor of interviewing Mr. Woodson, Superintendent of Schools.

Publishing a news-filled edition each month meant meeting a perpetual deadline for those of us of the FAIR FACTS staff. Top editors and cub reporters alike shared in the struggle to complete each issue: writing copy, reading proof, captioning pictures. We strived to supply the students with vital information. Our reporters attended each athletic game to insure a thorough coverage of Rebel sports life. There was always at least one "newspaperman" taking notes furiously at every school activity. Our photographer was one of the most familiar faces around Fairfax. But we found that there was a great deal more to publishing a paper besides simply putting it together. In support of our publication we sold ads, sponsored the annual Peppy-Johnny contest and dance in connection with our subscription drive, and held the Sadie Hawkins dance. Hard work, diligence, and the guidance of Mrs. Rion, our faculty sponsor, enabled us to meet our monthly obligation in proper style and, in addition, to bring out a special sixteen-page edition commemorating Fairfax's twenty-fifth anniversary.

Staff members Marjorie Youmans, Dottie Carberry, Linda Lovejoy, Lani Fletcher, Mac Jones, Kay Williams, Ted Cooper, and Donna Burgess look over material for the magazine with Mrs. Leona Egan, Sponsor.

Rebelations . . . stirs lively interest in writing

Reflecting on last year's triumph of "Rebelations", we entered this year with hopes high for continued success. We spent the first few months sorting and screening material to choose the best examples of student talent. For a while financial difficulties threatened to defeat us, but in the end we came out the victors. Two editions of our outstanding magazine were published successfully, and we could view with pride the enjoyment we had brought to Fairfax.

Future Homemakers . . . for better living

As members of F. H. A., our goal was to prepare for future life as American homemakers. Ignoring occasional burned pans, we perfected our skills so we could put on a successful Mother-Daughter Banquet. Pricked fingers did not discourage us from creating smart, fashionable clothes. Gaining assurance of our domestic skills, we finished the year with a deep sense of satisfaction, and a desire to put our new-found talents to use.

Fairfax Band . . . plays on

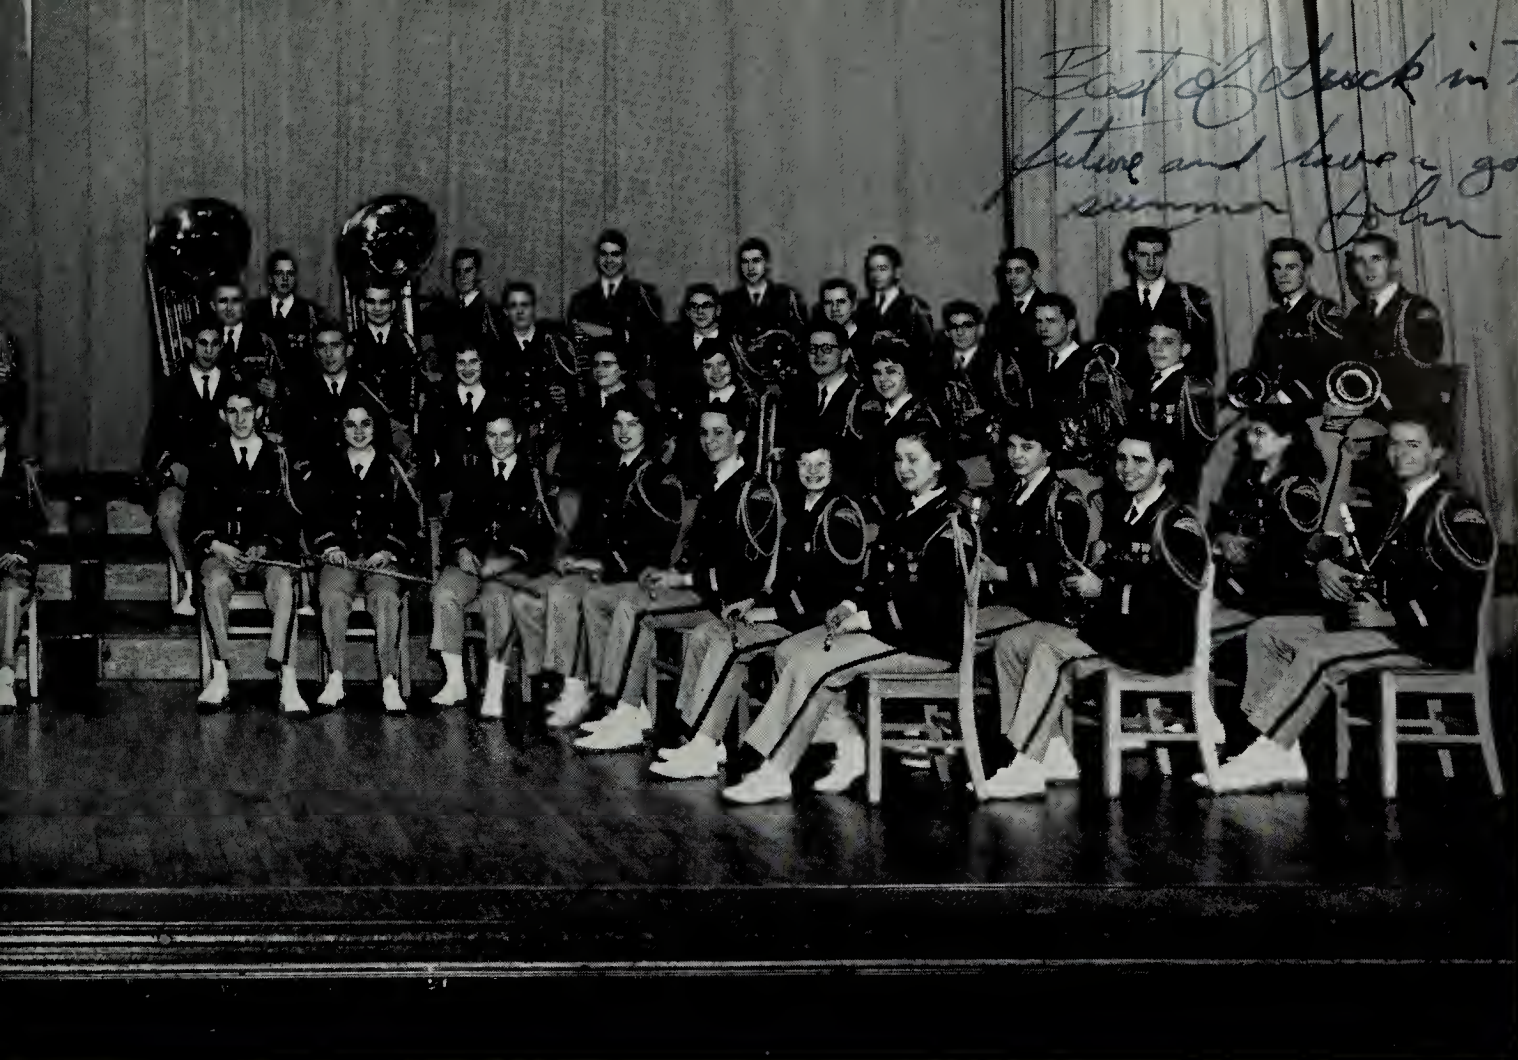

Mr. Fuller waits patiently while Ginger Hackett types a letter.

We were the ones who reved up spirit in the students of Fairfax. We were there at every football game to induce enthusiasm. During the half-time, our white bucks traced the intricate patterns of routines devised by our director, Mr. Fuller.

At the beginning of the year we moved our equipment to the long-awaited new addition. Complete with hi-fi, the large room provided welcome space.

We displayed our skills at concerts, putting a great deal of effort and practice into every piece we played. Our own enjoyment and the enthusiasm of the audience made our year-long efforts worth while.

Fairfax High half-time activities boasted more than just band playing. As members of the Drill Team or Majorette corps, we bent our talents to provide an outstanding program for the enjoyment of game watchers. Despite the blue lips and numb legs of practice sessions, we rehearsed constantly to perfect our formations and routines. The world watched with pride when the Rebel precision corps marched on the field.

Despite the absence of male voices, we made up for it by showing our talents and our ability to get along without them. Altos and sopranos harmonized to provide good entertainment at assemblies and pride within ourselves. Under Mr. Wygeil's directing, we perfected our voices to fit the mood of the songs we chose. We performed in several assemblies and were pleased with our hard earned merit.

Senior Choir...with melody in their hearts

We belonged to the Senior Choir because our musical ability and experience proved that we should be a part of the music-minded persons of F.H.S. Some of us were more talented than others, yet we all shared the same enthusiasm and willingness to work. By means of concerts and the state music festival, we made others aware of our accomplishments. However, our audience seldom realized the weeks of practicing which lay behind each performance. These activities and the participation of many choir members in the state and county choruses gave us all a proud feeling of achievement.

National Honor Society . . .

Honor societies recognize students who put scholastic ability to work

Our faces shone with pride as we heard our names called during the induction assembly and we made our way to the stage. As this sensation faded, it was replaced by a new sense of responsibility, for we had come to realize the true significance of becoming a member of this select group. Not an end in itself, membership was a recognition not only of past achievements but of the promise we held for the future. Now we felt obliged to maintain an outstanding standard of scholarship and character. Other students looked to us for wise and mature leadership. We knew that our time and services belonged to our school and community when they were needed. In fulfilling these obligations, we tried in every way to exemplify our ideals: scholarship, character, leadership, and service.

Junior Honor Society . . .

Citizenship, leadership, scholarship, service, and character: these were our ideals of the Junior Honor Society. We inducted Freshmen meeting the high requirements for membership in December and Plebes were admitted in the spring. In many ways we fulfilled the aims of our society by striving for high scholarship, through Christmas card sales, and through assemblies at Christmas and Easter. We wore our gold pins with pride for they were the symbols of our goals attained.

Service was our "key" word. We organized the Lost and Found to return lost articles to heartbroken students. An innovation, the sale of F.H.S. blazers and emblems, was begun by us to help finance our foreign exchange student project. After the Homecoming game we sponsored a delicious BAR-B-Q for the benefit of starved rooters. Lunch periods found our members patrolling the halls as temporary monitors. At the end of the year, we knew we had fulfilled our purpose of serving our community, school and home.

Key Club... shows all-around good character

Pep Club... sparks enthusiasm

Pep Club members create one of their fantastic bulletin boards.

A newly organized group this year, we strived to promote exactly what the name of our club implied—pep. We put up bulletin boards for every game. We attended all games and cheered our best to help the cheerleaders arouse enthusiasm. We accomplished a job well done in conveying this intangible yet so evident spirit to the student body.

Latin Club . . . gains knowledge of the past

With familiar Latin declensions, we began another memorable year as members of Gens Togata. We were gratified for the help given us by Miss Bowler, our sponsor. During the year, we increased our knowledge at the state convention, and participated in many activities. Our Latin Club Banquet proved to be another successful Latin Club undertaking as our members imitated the Roman style of eating. Soon we learned the value of studying ancient customs and culture as 1960 drew to a close.

Future teachers . . . plan for future careers

Drawn together by a common interest in the teaching profession, we satisfied our curiosity through discussions, speakers, motion pictures, and field trips. Visits to local grade schools, during which we observed actual classroom situations, added to our knowledge of elementary education and teaching conditions. We participated in a mutual exchange of ideas and discovered new ways in which we could help our school and ourselves to a better understanding of our role as teachers in the modern age.

We named our club this year—the Virgil Carrington Jones Chapter of the Quill and Scroll Society. As a journalistic honor society, our still-young organization was the aim of every literary-minded student. Twice during the year we inducted qualified members from F. H. S. publications staffs. Our induction banquets were memorable affairs. As members of this society we could be proud to wear its emblem, for it signified a standard of journalism attained by only the most outstanding students.

Quill and Scroll . . . recognize able journalists

*Claudia
The Quill and Scroll Society is a group of students who are interested in journalism. They are the ones who write the news stories for the school paper. They are the ones who are responsible for the quality of the news stories. They are the ones who are the backbone of the school paper.*

Debate Club . . . develops confidence in pros and cons

Through the year, we reaped many benefits from the Debate Club's activities. We learned to express ideas clearly and concisely and to organize information rapidly. Speaking before a group became enjoyable as we acquired the ability to remain poised and cool-headed in the face of tension. Under Miss Bowler's guidance, we formed intelligent opinions and defended them against other teams of the Northern Virginia Forensic League. The experience we gained as members of this club will do much toward making us outstanding citizens of our country in future years.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Tinsman the Bible Club was very active through the year. Often we invited the student body to participate in frequent activities which included movies, guest speakers, and other outstanding programs. Of course, our primary activity was the study of the Bible. We read through chapters at each meeting, gaining more thorough knowledge of the Scriptures.

Bible Club . . . heightens spiritual values

Chess Club . . . checkmates and competition

Intense concentration shows itself the key to Chess Club activities.

Under the new sponsorship of Mr. Mosely, the Chess Club took on added spirit and interest. Echoes of "check-mate" rang through the halls as we practiced our skills during after-school hours. We participated in tournaments with eager enthusiasm and a will to win. We found, through our own experience, that competition was the best teacher we could have in improving our techniques and skills. We found a whole world of competitive spirit awaiting us as Chess Club members.

Officers of the Senior Science Club: David Perlman, Treasurer; Cynthia Knickman, President; Ray Baggs, Vice-President; Ellen Olson, Corresponding Sec.; Lester Partlow, Executive Secretary.

As members of the Senior Science Club, our activities were many and varied. We ran the annual science fair, planning its arrangement and finally judging the many projects. Through assemblies we furthered interest in the student body and showed them the fascinating side of science. Through our efforts we instilled in our minds the thought of achieving worth-while goals.

As members of a group devoted to the study of the life sciences, we derived enjoyment from the plants and animals which make up our environment. Field trips increased our knowledge and enthusiasm as did guest speakers and club discussions. Dissection became a pleasure and formaldehyde a familiar odor as our favorite subject became a favorite hobby and prospective career.

Monitors . . . possess responsibility and initiative

Equipped with badges and a strong will, we were determined to keep order in Fairfax's halls. We stood on duty in the halls to assure the least possible amount of confusion. During lunch hours we kept the halls noise-free so that classes in session would not be disturbed. Throughout the year we served the students by restricting them.

Patrols . . . promote and control safety

Every morning found us patrolling the buses and keeping order. We helped the bus driver hold his sanity by quieting the noise to a gentle roar. When school started, we fell into the routine of the day with the other students, but at the sound of the last bell we went back to our duties of assuring safety and preserving peace.

The French Club, newly established this year at Fairfax, got under way with an enthusiastic group. Together we conquered some fine points of the French language and became familiar with many aspects of the country itself. As Christmas approached our meetings adjourned to the Cafeteria where we practiced French carols. Our efforts were fully rewarded by the caroling party and the fun that followed. French films and slides presented a sweeping view of France—its people and customs. As our first year drew to a successful close, we could say with pride “Oui, nous parlons francais.”

French Club... parlez-vous Francais?

Russian Club... for better understanding.

In the rush of studies and extra-curricular activities, we took time out for the difficult but fascinating project of learning to speak Russian. Mr. McConnell strove to conquer a brand new alphabet, and proudly took our places to recite poetry at a gathering of the Russian Club from American University. Through our meetings with the Annandale Russian Club, and through special speakers and films we gained an enlightened view and increased understanding of our all-important neighbor, the Soviet Union.

To us, the paint brush and easel were symbols of achievement. In our meetings every Tuesday, we discussed our projects used, new methods, and experimented with different techniques. We perfected our use of clay, molding sculpture and making ceramics on the "potters wheel". We formulated ideas and, with the able guidance of Miss Marshall, found that they were not beyond our reach.

New skills in new situations

We were proud to be among the first of our classmates to become a part of the world beyond our school. In a sense, we played a dual role: We were both students and employees. During the morning, we studied tools and ideas, and in the afternoons, we applied our knowledge to practical situations. Every paycheck was a symbol of the fact that we had assumed an adult's job in American industry. In retailing and other occupations, we learned skills under careful supervision which would fit us to play a useful and productive role after graduation.

Cafeteria Staff ... kept a tidy kitchen

Cooking, baking, serving us our lunches—these duties were the daily chores of the cafeteria workers. Tasty meals and wonderful desserts were the products of each morning's work. Cheerfully, they served us amid the clamor of three lunch shifts, but their work did not end there. The end of the day found the cafeteria neat and tidy, ready for another day.

Custodians ... for healthful living

Mr. Whitmer, head custodian, stops by the book room for supplies.

As custodians of Fairfax High School, we were faced with multitudinous chores each day. After the first bell in the morning, we found the halls tracked with muddy footprints. During the class period, we patiently cleared the halls—just in time for the next period and another onslaught of dirty tracks. At the close of each day, we stayed long after the sound of those footsteps died away sweeping, polishing, repairing. Big job or small, we were capable of performing them all.

ATHLETICS...

Reflected our abounding rebel spirit

Our athletic teams this year worked hard developing co-ordination, teamwork, and confidence; and we knew the taste of both victory and defeat. But whether we won or lost, we had the satisfaction of knowing we had done our best. Blaring horns of cavalcades, crackling bonfires, and thrilling pep rallies infused in us an exuberant school spirit which was reflected in enthusiastic crowds and determined teams. This spirit unified the teams, the student body, and faculty in urging our squads to victory. We owe many thanks to our devoted band, high-stepping majorettes, and vivacious cheerleaders for their indefatigable energy and spirit in supporting us. As we look back, we realize that the hard work and late practices were well worth the results; it will be difficult to find a more rewarding year in sports.

Varsity Cheerleaders . . . keep our spirits soaring

Our peppy squad did more than their share to promote school spirit. Through long hard practices, cold freezing weather, and hot sticky gyms their loyalty and enthusiasm were never dampened. They had snappy cheers at pep rallies, bonfires, and games to rouse us in support of our teams. With constant smiles and undying spirit they backed our Rebel squads whether victory was ours or not.

rebel gridders chalk up another successful season

The Rebels finished the season with a fine 7-3 record—a great season for a team predicted to hold up the bottom of the league. "Gentleman Jim" Moeller's inexperienced team reflected truly superb coaching. Hal Stalnaker had to completely rebuild his backfield it was! Coach Moeller had only seven returning linemen from which to build a line.

Fairfax suffered a heart-breaking 14-9 defeat to W-L in the first game of the season. Then they bounced back with what looked like the best defense in the league to blank four teams in a row. In the Falls Church game Dickie Titus was the man of the hour with his sixty yard kickoff return. The Jags bowed 27-7 to the Rebel team. In the Hammond game Titus dashed seventy-five yards for a touchdown in the first play from scrimmage, but Hammond went on to upset the Rebels 14-7. Following wins over Groveton and Lee the Rebels bowed to Annandale 21-0, but not because of a lack of spirit in the Rebel stands.

Co-captains John Crosby and Duane Conques.

As we look back on a great season it will be hard to forget the superb running of Jack Mulligan and Dickie Titus, the fine pass-receiving of Tom Appler and Bill Olson, the passing of Doug Davis, and the versatility of Jim Hall. Good luck, Rebels! Here's hoping next year will bring as successful a season.

battered and beaten and sometimes defeated

With the graduation of many hockey players last spring, the team was faced with filling many vacancies. Sally Clark, Judy Bryan, Barbara Paquette, Rosie Wilbur, and Janet Fiore returned for the third year, and with others moving up from the J.V., the team was soon complete. Carrying good sportsmanship and school spirit to other schools, the Rebels met their opponents with the desire to play a good game and bring home a victory. Hard practice and Miss Ashton's good coaching helped us meet our rivals in well-played games.

Junior Varsity Hockey . . . a team full of spirit

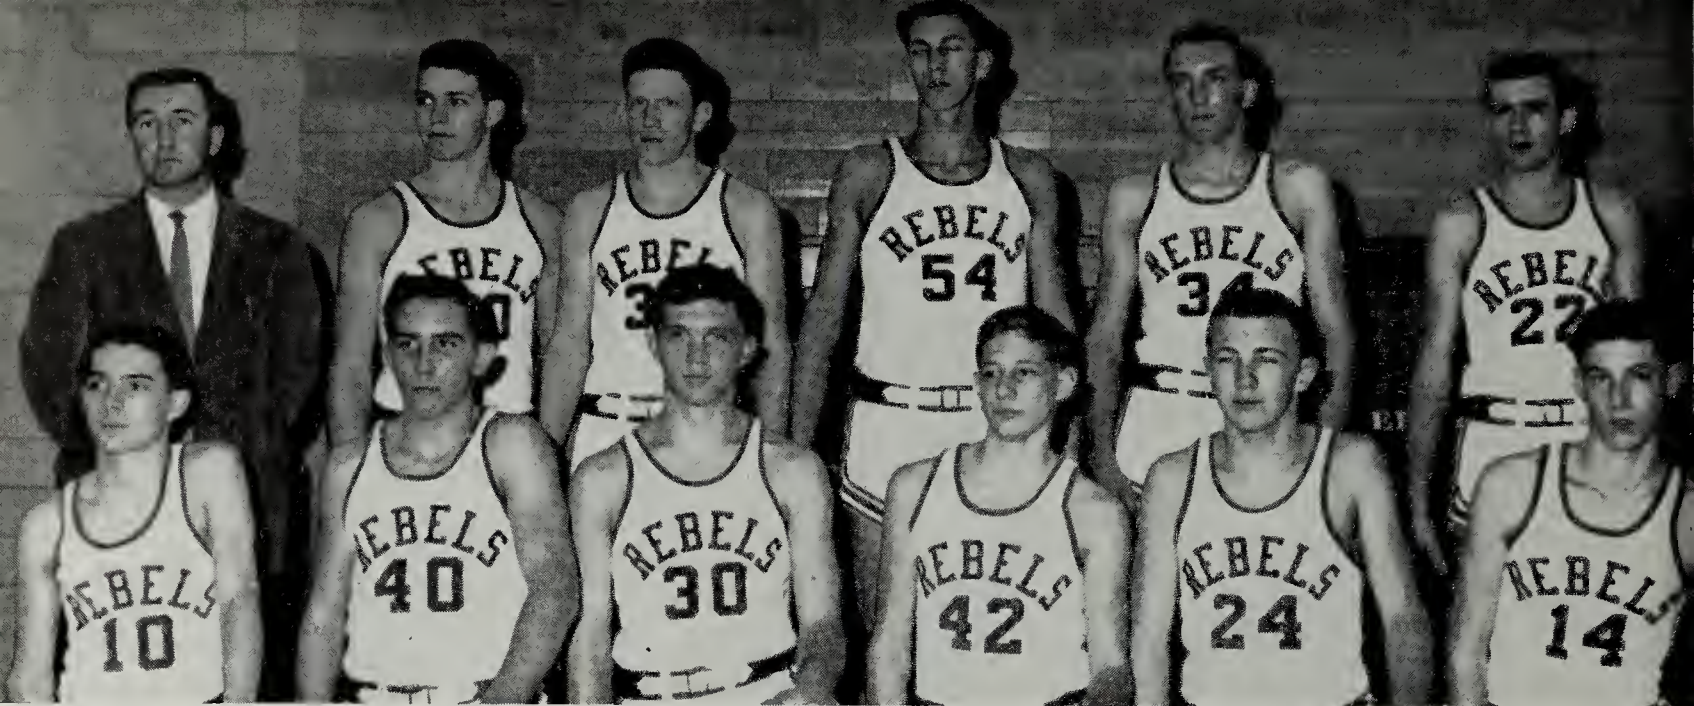

The season was frustrating to this hard-working team as they emerged with a long string of ties on their record, but they carried on with great spirit throughout the entire schedule. Led by Co-captains Libby Johnston and Sue Allen and helped by the expert coaching of Miss Poarch, the girls ended their season with a 2-4-1 record. The quick work of agile center forward Madeline Ford accounted for many of the goals, but she was ably assisted by the rest of the Jayvee's. The team was forced to play in weather that varied from intense heat to freezing cold and on fields which seemed to be either completely dust or mud. In spite of these handicaps, their enthusiasm never waned; and they truly reflected the Rebel spirit.

an inexperienced team reaches unexpected heights

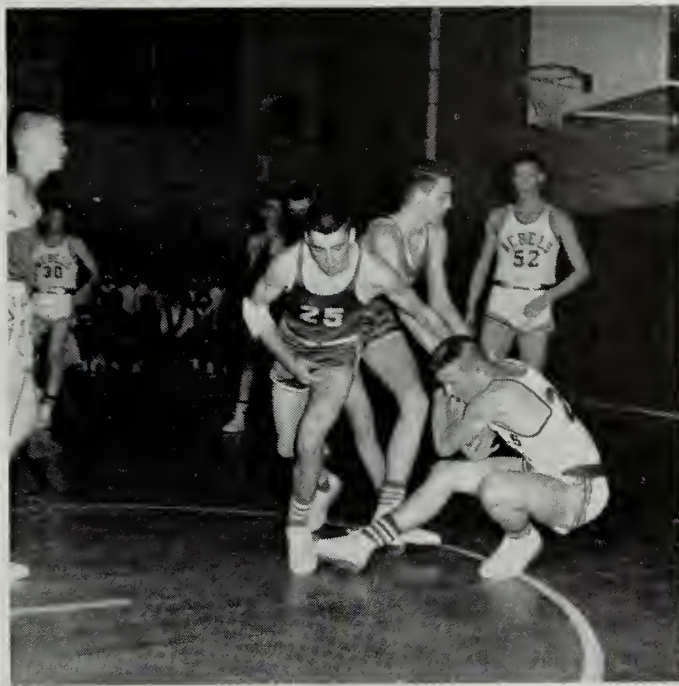

Big George climbs to the rafters for a rebound.

With a young and inexperienced team and only two returning lettermen, the season looked dark for the Rebels. Our new coach, Frank Ferguson, was far from optimistic at the offset of the season, but he built from a squad of mostly sophomores and juniors a team of which we all can be proud. Concentrating on the future, Coach Ferguson limited his team to only three seniors. Big George Levendis provided the only real height on the squad and paced the team all season. Seniors John Gates and Charlie Shumate offered depth to the team. Juniors Bill Olson and Tom Appler hit consistently and were always dependable. Playmaker Dick Hagan hit frequently with long set shots and kept the games moving. Sophomore Bruce Kiely's versatility lent balance to the Rebel attack. The future looks good for the promising Rebel cagers, and next year should bear the fruit of Coach Ferguson's labors.

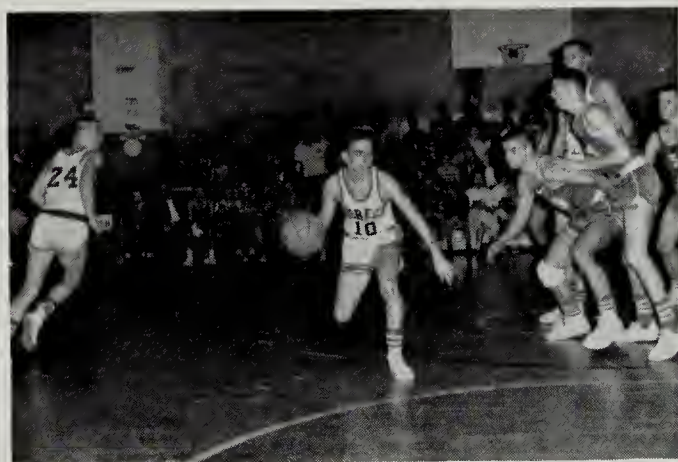

Bill Olson sinks another one to help the Rebels beat the Generals.

Bruce Kiely is determined to keep the ball in Rebel hands.

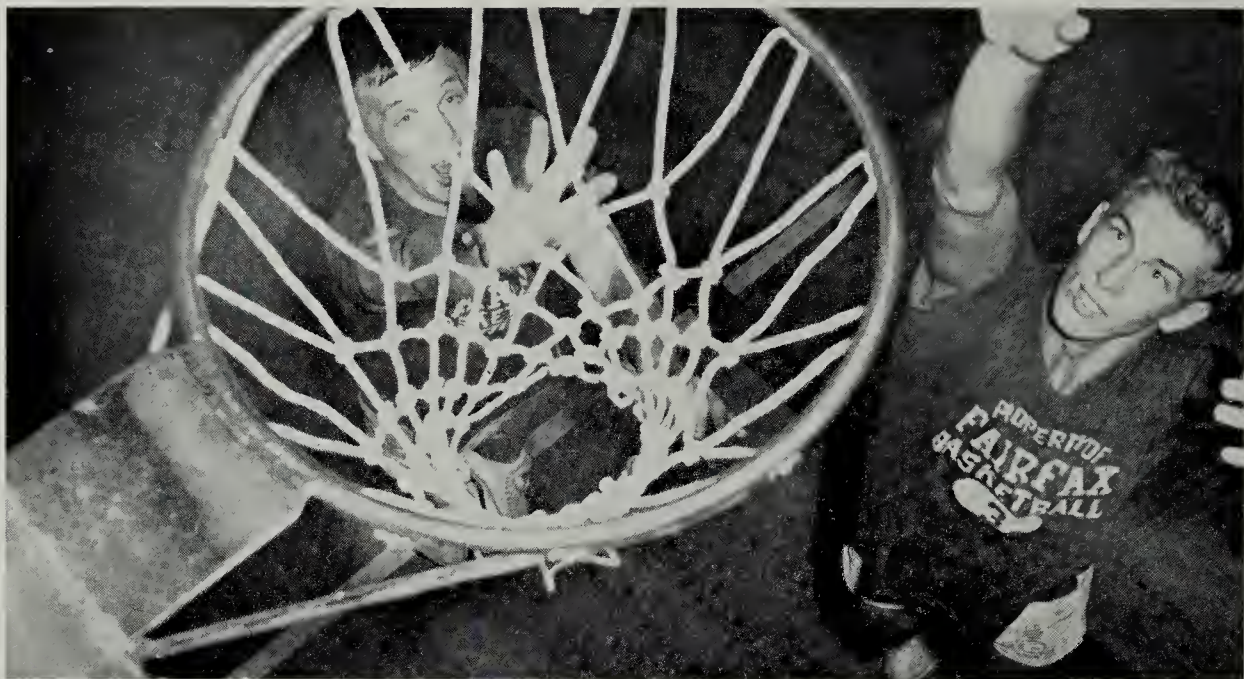

Tom Appler puts a jump shot over a defending Highlander.

a spirited squad swept opposition

An experienced varsity team played an outstanding season in basketball this year. The first string, made up of our seniors, sparked the season and compiled a record of 11 victories and 1 defeat. Lyndle Eaton, the high scorer with an average of 18.25 points per game, was ably assisted by Ann King and Sally Clark. Judy Bryan, Meri Twitchell, and Martha Collier supplied well co-ordinated defense and invaluable rebounds. Our one loss of the year, to McLean, was hidden by our big wins over Madison, Lee, Falls Church, and Annandale. Throughout the season, the team worked together with true Rebel spirit and when the scores were in, they were co-champions of the league.

Lyndle Eaton gets off a long shot as Mary Keiser and Ann King wait impatiently for a possible rebound.

This record does not seem too outstanding, but what it fails to show is the great sportsmanship and spirit with which these girls played. Varsity Baseball a hustling team wins

Ken gets set to unleash some power in the G.W. game. We went on to win 3-4.

Our Varsity Baseball Team, coached by Hal Stalnaker, really came out on top last season by defeating Wakefield 5-3 in the last game of the season and taking the coveted Northern Virginia crown. Junior Duane Conques paced the team in the hitting department all year and finished near the top in the loop. The brilliant pitching and hard hitting of Fred Talbot did much to keep the Rebel nine on top all season besides earning him a $25,000 bonus from the Chicago White Sox. Seniors Ken Kowalski and Bob Dudley and junior Bill Freece all proved to be offensive as well as defensive assets.

Duane Conques slaps out a single in the Groveton game.

With five returning lettermen and experienced players moving up from the J.V. team, the Rebels were ready for the 58-59 season. Rain halted their first game in the 3rd with Fairfax leading Mt. Vernon, 6-5. Falls Church and Herndon also fell prey to the Rebels with the scores 20-5 and 24-4. Homeruns by Judy Bryan and the Johnson twins added excitement to the Herndon game. The Highlanders of McLean brought the first defeat to Fairfax's record, 12-6, and later handed them another one, 14-10. Playing only one game with our big rivals, Annandale, we were dealt another defeat, 10-1. With the fine pitching of Judy Bryan, the Rebels downed Lee, 16-5, to end their season with a 6-4 record.

Juniors Jim Pruitt and George Levendis were big scorers in the same meet. Pruitt won the mile and Levendis ran second in the 120 high hurdles and the 880 yard run. Rebel reflections through rose-colored glasses

A nostalgic recollection, those forgotten play programs, a withered corsage . . . these are the momentos that keep the past so fresh and vivid in our minds. Homecoming—we crowned a glowing queen and found ourselves among Rebels who knew Fairfax “way back when.” The Sadie Hawkins—girls learned to take the initiative as we delivered a stinging blow to Emily Post. Our class plays—these experiences in co-operation yielded polished performances and a new sense of unity. The Sno-Ball—we blithely lost ourselves in the magic and glitter of the Christmas season. The Sweetheart—we danced our way through an evening of variations on the theme of love. And, finally, the Prom—for Juniors it was the culmination of months of thought and effort, for Seniors a never-to-be-forgotten night of enchantment. As the disappointments and discouragements of adolescence are forgotten, these are the events that we will call to mind to laugh, perhaps to sigh, and to reflect.

Homecoming . . .

Brilliant sunshine, colorful foliage, and the crisp atmosphere of early autumn provided an appropriate setting for the events of that special Saturday. Our first Homecoming parade, a rousing success, gained our wholehearted support. Whether admiring from the sidelines or participating actively, each of us felt a stir of pride, recalling the hours of feverish activity that had gone into the construction of floats and into the practice that insured polished performances from the band, majorettes, and drill team. At the alumni luncheon old grads greeted one another with the exclamation "Do you remember when . . .?" and perhaps a subsequent explanation of that victory over George Washington way back in '46. In the game that followed, school spirit and enthusiasm soared as we cheered our team on to an exciting victory over Falls Church.

A never-to-be-forgotten moment.

Attractive floats called to mind hours of effort.

At your service ma'm!

Gracie and Celeste gaily wave as they pass.

Leaping flames reflect our boundless enthusiasm.

Margaret Williams applies a little necessary persuasion.

But why didn't you tell me it was informal?

Sadie Hawkins . . . reflected our sense of humor

'Round about the middle of November the Sadie Hawkin's Dance popped up to relieve the monotony for the female faction here at F. H. S. Prim and demure young ladies grew aggressive as they sat out to corral those not so unwilling males. Having accomplished this feat, they realized that geeting hitched was quite another matter. Clad in burlap and clutching straw hats they employed feminine wiles and other not-so-feminine tacties to drag their dates before Marryin' Sam in true Dogpatch fashion. But somehow those boys really didn't seem to mind at all.

In a few minutes . . .

Junior Play . . . "Curtain up! light the lights!"

A sudden cessation of furtive whispering backstage, a quick, terrified exchange of glances as the lights went on, an almost interminable period of waiting, and then the curtain on THE BRAINSTORM opened. For the hardworking cast it was a long-awaited, secretly dreaded moment. Directing every effort into projecting their roles, they somehow sensed the confidence that Mrs. French and the entire Junior Class had in them. For everyone who had contributed his time and effort, and especially the boys who had built the sets, it was a moment of triumph. It was a time for every Junior to say, "I'm proud to be a member of the Class of '61."

Eleven lovely candidates—a difficult decision.

Sno-Ball . . . winter wonderland

Cretia's smile reveals her astonished pleasure.

Glittering ice and crunchy snow were uppermost in our minds on that crisp evening in December. The swish of winter formals as we danced, the frosty atmosphere of a transformed cafeteria, and the crowning of our vivacious queen, Cretia Carrico—all these left us glowing and content. Was it sheer exuberance at the prospect of an extended vacation, the merriment of the holiday season, or simply our own Christmas spirit that made the Sno-Ball Dance so very memorable?

The glowing face of our queen reflects a holiday atmosphere.

The Sweetheart Court for 1960 presents a picture of frosty net and smiling faces.

Sweetheart . . .

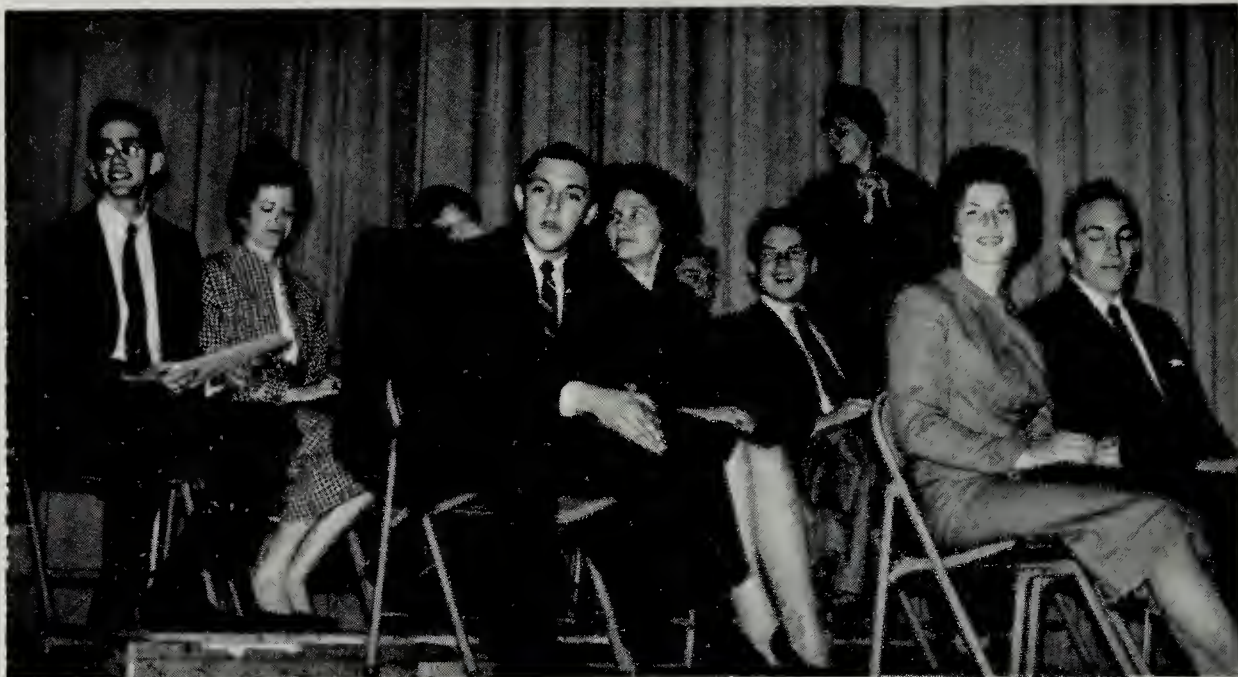

Nancy Butler has a dreamy expression as she loses herself in the soft music.

Although it was postponed a week by a snow storm, the Sweetheart Dance seemed to arrive at just the right moment to lift sagging spirits from the foggy monotony of late winter. The tension of the Magazine Drive and basketball season was soon dissolved by the gay hearts-and-flowers atmosphere as we lost ourselves in soft music and thoughts of that "special someone". Lighthearted and glowing with happiness we recalled but dimly Friday's classroom and the leaden skies which had closed in all week. Suddenly February had become May and we reflected that, after all, spring is only a state of mind.

The Sweetheart couple for 1960, Anne Piddington and Dickie Titus, relax momentarily as they pose for photographers.

Relaxing, parents Steel Colony, Jimmie Lubin, Ken Greene, Les Malachuk, Sandy Proctor, Jon Kerr, Marjorie Youmans, Glenn Fant, Anne Piddington, and Harold Weiler enjoy a break in rehearsal.

Senior Play . . .

a final reflection of '60 spirit

In our final activity, the class of '60 displayed maturity and adult judgement by choosing a drama of unusual depth and intensity. Without formal scenery, we conveyed the play's criticism of modern society. Marked by irony, realism, and dark overtones, our production communicated human emotion and our responsibility toward those with whom we live. In producing "The Remarkable Incident at Carson Corners" under Mrs. French's able direction, we had experience an altogether memorable Senior Play.

"Does anyone know what is going on here?" wonder Anne Raymond, Donna Burgess, Ann Marie Kidwell, Cretia Carrico, and Bobbie Scherer.

Claudia,

We've had fun, haven't we?
Remember the changing of our clothes in the office. The lunch table - god!! Have a good time at college and remember me when you have nothing to do.

Dear Claudia,

I don't know just what to say but of course, we can always talk about English.

Who can forget the fun we had in there and how good Miss Kern has been to us (like A - on my term paper). Lots of luck always to a very fine girl.

Love,
Sam

It's been nice knowing you and all the kids
